b. Foreign air routes:

Budapest-Prague; Budapest-Warsaw; Budapest-Bucharest-Sofia. Budapest-Prague is a joint Maszovlet-Czech service. Budapest-Bucharest-Sofia is a Maszovlet-Rumanian-Bulgarian pool. Budapest-Warsaw is flown only by the Soviet Airlines Company, with connections at Warsaw to Moscow. Hungarian planes do not fly over the Soviet Union.

Assembly and Repair Shops.

These consist of a carpenter shop, fitter's shop and engine assembly shop, equipped with modern machinery. Electric current is supplied by the Budapest power system. The airport also has its own power plant. The men work a 48-hour week, in two shifts. A mechanic gets 1,000 forints a month, from which there are deductions of 100 to 120 forints. The 14th and 29th of each month are paydays.

- 6. The Fighters for Freedom Association (Szabadságharcos Szővetség) has its quarters at the airport, where preparatory parachute training is given. The Maszovlet LI-2 machines are used for this.
- 7. The military airfield at Szeged has been isolated from the commercial field. The runways are the same and are used in common, but the military field is a restricted area and commercial planes may not pass over it.
